This ongoing pursuit of wellness has led TriVita to the heart of the Sonoran Desert, the discovery of its ancient healing traditions, and the creation of Nopalea, the flagship product in the new Sonoran Bloom wellness line.

Nopalea health benefits

Nopalea blends antioxidant-rich Nopal cactus superfruit, naturally sweet Agave nectar, and other powerful nutrients to create a concentrated wellness drink that has been scientifically proven to help:

- Protect against premature aging
- Reduce inflammation
- Promote optimal cellular health
- Detoxify the body

The Nopal cactus and antioxidant betalains

The Nopal cactus has been called a “superfruit” because it contains a rare type of antioxidants called betalains. These betalains are highly potent—and they’re only found in a few of the world’s plants. The Nopal fruit isn’t just included in this small group of special plants, it actually leads the group by containing one of the highest amounts of betalains found in all of nature.

Scientific research shows that betalains help to:

- Reduce the risk of blood clots—betalains protect the thin lining of blood vessels; this helps reduce the inflammation that makes blood sticky and leads to clots.
- Reduce bad cholesterol—betalains strongly reduce oxidized LDL cholesterol.
- Protect cells from toxins—betalains protect many types of cells, especially brain cells, from toxins known to trigger tumors.
- Protect the liver—betalains provide significant protection from toxins that directly affect the liver.

How Nopalea is made

Nopalea uses only the freshest Nopal cactus fruit. To ensure its freshness and preserve its antioxidant potency, the fruit is:

- Harvested from the Sonoran Desert using sustainable wildcrafting techniques.
- Pureed in a state-of-the-art processing plant.
- Bottled using aseptic, sterile techniques.

Sonoran Bloom origins

Sonoran Bloom celebrates the ancient wisdom of our Sonoran ancestors—and the wellness properties of the desert’s native plants. For centuries the native Sonorans have used desert botanicals like the Nopal cactus not only for nourishment and comfort, but also for clarity, longevity, and strength. And now, Sonoran Bloom is bringing the health benefits of the Nopal cactus fruit to people everywhere.
